RESULTS

Are the Effects of CONFIDENCE.

Advertising matter in the columns of The Ladies' Home Journal is kept as clean and safe as its literary material. By closely adhering to this policy subscribers to the Journal have been induced to read advertisements and to rely upon them with an implicit faith never before experienced with any other publication.

The fullest confidence of a magazine's subscription list is better than gold to its publisher.

An advertisement in such a publication carries with it the personal stamp of approval of the management, and the endorsement of the publisher as a guarantee of good faith.

Experienced advertisers know the value of such a confidential relation between a publisher and his readers.

THE PREFERRED LIST.*

In connection with the various lists that have heretofore been published in PRINTERS' INK, it has been stated that it was not pretended that they would cover the country in a really thorough They merely presented a scheme suited to the needs of the various classes of advertisers who did not feel warranted in expending above a certain amount of money. In this issue, however, a list is presented which can be safely recommended to advertisers desiring to cover the country thoroughly by States. It has been made the subject of careful revision, and Geo. P. Rowell & Co. advise their patrons to confine their advertising to papers selected from this catalogueunless they find conclusive reasons for wishing to use others.

In order that advertisers may form an idea of what it will cost to advertise the country thoroughly, it may be stated that a ten-line advertisement (about 75 words) will cost something like $2,000. One hundred thousand dollars will not pay for the insertion of a very large advertisement in all of these papers for the period of three months.

Here, under the name of the "Preferred List," are set down the names of all the papers that have been included in previous lists, together with all such publications as can be specially recommended in any State, city or section of country. It has been the aim to name the best paper in every place; the catalogue will be found to include all the greatest and all the best.

The total edition of all these newspapers (a single issue of each) is between fifteen and eighteen millionmore than enough to place a copy in the hands of every head of a family in every State, territory or province. An advertisement inserted once in all the periodicals here catalogued will reach the homes of more than fifty million people.

No periodical publication having so large a circulation as twenty-five thousand copies each issue is omitted. Every place having so large a population as 5,000, and every county seat having a population of so much as 3,000, is here represented if it has a newspaper printing so many as a thousand copies a week.

Every Religious, Agricultural or other Class weekly having a regular issue of so many as ten thousand copies; and every monthly "Class publication" having a regular issue of more than twenty thousand copies, will be found to have a place in this catalogue.

NEW YORK, JULY 9, 1890.

A GREAT deal of space in this issue of PRINTERS' INK is devoted to "The Preferred List," the last in the series of lists which have been appearing for some weeks past. It is believed that these lists, while of no general interest, are of peculiar value to advertisers, and have been fully appreciated by this class, in whose interest PRINTERS' INK is published.

From all accounts, the members of the National Editorial Association appear to have had a most enjoyable time at their late convention at Boston, although there was less "resolving" done than is usual on such occasions. The subject of advertising was discussed by Mr. E. W. Stephens, of and every publisher is a law unto him- work, As to the question of advertising agencies, Mr. Stephens said that while he was not an enemy of this class, he was, nevertheless, of the opinion that the weekly papers of the country would be better off without the middleman, Against this assertion may be placed the sound common sense embodied in the address of that thorough newspaper man, Charles A. Dana, or the New York Sun, to the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. In debating this subject of the agency, mr. Dana said: "The complicated machinery of our modern life cannot be carried on without middlemen. You must have them. They constitute a machinery of modern life and the procession."

That a vast amount of money is squandered with the modern life cannot be carried on without middlemen. You must have them. They constitute a machinery of modern life and the procession. The square of modern life and the procession with the modern life and the procession. newspaper man, Charles A. Dana, of great wheel in the economy of modern pended, I advertise regularly in four papers life, and without that wheel the machinery will not work;" an observation which very properly met with the applause of the association.

THERE are many and most important features concerning advertising that should be carefully considered before a prospective advertiser is justified in "casting his bread upon the waters," "Look before you leap" and "Think before you speak" are very old yet true sayings.

No man who has tried will deny that it is an extremely difficult thing to get an advertiser of long experience to express a definite opinion on any point relating to his business. For this reason the letters from six prominent advertisers, printed on another page, are all the more valuable. While all recognize that advertising rates are governed by special circumstances and considerations, they will be found to have made specific statements of considerable general interest. The prevailing sentiment in reply to the second question seems to be that advertising by circulars, almanacs, etc., is merely auxiliary to newspaper advertising, although Mr. Curtis, of the Ladies' Home Journal, goes so far as to state that his experience has been that advertising in the regular periodicals is the only kind that does pay, The replies to the third question bring to light a variety of points to be observed by the writer of advertisements, and Missouri, in the course of a paper on Dr. Pierce undoubtedly hits the nail "Newspaper Making for Profit." Re- on the head when he says that people ferring to the present lack of uniform- appreciate genius when displayed in ity in rates, he made the very true re- writing about one's business as much mark: "There is no general standard as in any other branch of literary

"OVERDOING IT."

D. M. CLEWELL, DRY GOODS, RAVENNA, Ohio, April 26, 1890. Editor of PRINTERS' INK :

Through the courtesy of Mr. Meharg, publisher of one of our local papers, I regularly receive your little gem. PRINTERS INK. I always read it with interest and always find something new, and get pointers from it. I am not what you could call a heavy-weight advertiser, but still am fully alive to the fact

-two in our own town and one each in ad- by the setting; or, in other words, the joining counties-and find that by pounding away, changing every week or two (as all the away, changing every week or two das an the papers are weekly), giving items of interest in describing the various kinds of goods, the quantities necessary for any given style, etc., that naturally interest lady buyers of dry goods, and then supplementing my regular advertisement with a local, as I said, I find that this method has and does increase my sales, and brings me trade that I otherwise would not get. Now, what I want to ask you is—does it, in your opinion, as an expert in advertising matters, add or detract from the general merits of my weekly proclamations to go into so much detail? Do I incur the risk of saying too much? Are they too lengthy, of saying too much? Are they too lengthy, etc., to be intelligently read by the people whom I want to reach? Some of my com-petitors criticise my advertisements as "long

Am I fooling money away, in your opinion, and would you advise less space, and do you think my style would be improved by not writing in so personal a manner? I would be glad to have other of your readers (who are glad to have other on your readers (who are retail country merchants, who advertise in county weekly papers) expariate on this sub-ject, and if you can give this matter room in your little paper, so that it will call out the opinions of others, it would add very much in interest to country dealers and advertisers, and help all to make their advertisements what they should be to get best results, advertiser in his anxiety to produce the best results has overreached himself. Of how many other readers of PRINT-ERS' INK who regularly use the local papers is this also true? And now for the remedy: Our correspondent should seek to reduce the quantity of his advertisements. Let him in the first place dispense with his introduction. An advertisement is not a college essay, nor a magazine article. Its climax-to use a hibernicism-should come in the first Remember that the first few lines are the bait; you must induce the reader to nibble at this before you can hope to get him to swallow what comes further Another suggestion for condensation: Cut out all extraneous matter possible. If you want to call attention to bargains in Spring Newmarkets, it will not be necessary to start out with a disquisition on the return of Spring, or refer to "Nature putting on her new clothes." In a dry-goods store there are a very great many articles which might properly be brought to the public notice. tries have so utterly neglected to avail themselves of this most effective of all mediums of publicity that they hardly come into comparison. It is not the largest country, however, that is the most prolific in newspaper enterprises. For instance, Switzerland publishes more newspapers in proportion to its population than Germany.

"Probably in the history of French newspaper enterprise the most remarkable successes have been Galignani's Messenger, Le Petit Journal and Le Matin; but, of course, none of these have ranked so high in journalistic estimation as others which are regarded as the leading Parisian newspapers. The French press is to-day the freest in all Europe. Caution money is unknown, and, beyond contemptuous language against the President of the Republic, there are no offenses except those against the common lawcalumny, defamation, outrage, incitement to assassination or revolt (when this incitement is followed by any result), and offenses against public morals. From an advertising point of view, as we hinted at the outset, the French papers are sadly behindhand. Joseph Reinach, in an article to the Nineteenth Century some time ago, referred to this fact. He spoke of the sizes of the French newspapers being much smaller than those of English ones, a circumstance he attributed to several causes, the first of which was that 'advertising is with us in its infancy; whilst the large papers of London show every day eight and even In a newly issued book called "The twelve enormous pages of advertiseof the "foreign press" from an Eng- Advertisements are confined to special h standpoint: papers—Les Petits Affiches, Le Jour-"So far, the foreign press—if we nal des Gens de Maison, etc. Moreexcept that of America, in respect of over, advertisements play a very small which the ties of kinship are so close part in our Parisian life.' Country newspaper men are constantly receiving circulars similar to the following; and yet there are some men who claim that the country editor's lot is not a happy one:

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT,

As things has draged along the past year or so, and the most of them think strange, that so, and the most of them has savell as it did a few years ago, and all say what is the reason. Simply the People get disgusted with so much mis-representing, and the quicker that you drop the snide goods and handle something with merit, then you will begin to do something.

There is more Jewelry worn than ever before throughout the country, and the people is will-ing to pay for a good article, but so much of the cheap stuff is given as premiums and sold throughout the country that it kills the reprutation of any concern. The only parties that has done a successful Business in the past years are only those that will not deal in sham goods.

Like the "Ladies Home Journal," or "Youth Companion," now if they can make a success by dealing in First Class Goods why not you, and with that idea I have just got out a New Line of Goods that the best of them will wear and give satisfaction and will bring in another order by it. For it will pay you to handle these goods as there is a good profit in them. We can give you a Discount of from 50 to 100 per cent on prices in the circular.

A newspaper publisher who would not be satisfied with a discount of 100 per cent. must be very hard to suit.

ONE WAY OF ADVERTISING.

One of the advertiser's arts is to send samples through the express offices, charges unpaid, addressed to persons whose names are taken by the page from the city directories, If the citizen takes the package out of the office, not knowing what it contains, notice of the contents is thrust upon him. If he does not take it out, the express company sells the package to pay charges, and as it is nicely wrapped and probably heavy, it readily finds a purchaser. It makes no difference to the

A Chicago Washing Machine Company worked this scheme beautifully. At yesterday's sale of unclaimed express packages here, one man succeeded in outbidding an old Gerone man succeeded in outbidding an old German woman who was endeavoring to get a little paper box. When he opened it there was no glittering gold to greet his eyes, but printed on a yellow paper was the startling statement: "Terms to Agents. For $5 we will send twelve washing machines; sell for $44. Agent's profit, $10. For $25 we will send seventy-five washers; sell for $10. Agent's profit, $125." The trembling gentleman almost overcome by this guash of favor. man, almost overcome by this gush of favor, dug deeper and exposed to view a little tin vessel with miniature stove-pipe attachments. It is possibly capable of use as the agent's badge.

The purchaser was inconsolable until he found that nearly all his neighbors had bought packages containing the same assortment of goods. Each was confidentially informed by

A MODERN INSTANCE.

"The value of advertising is something wonderful," said a young married friend of mine. "You know I live pretty well out south, don't you, and that my wife goes away for the summer? Well, I talked with a few young fellows and we concluded that if we could get a small flat in a convenient location we would club together and live on the co-operative plan during the warm season; so I advertised for such a flat. I represented to my wite that it would be cheaper for me to board than to keep the house going for myself board than to keep the house going for myself and the hired girl, and she readily agreed that it would be better to discharge the girl and go to a boarding-house or hotel.

"Then, looking the Sunday paper over, she thought it would be a pious notion to try and rent our flat for the summer, and when I went to the newspaper office for answers, the first one I opened was from my wife trying to rent to me our own flat. The advertisement called for a small furnished flat for the summer, and that seemed to fit, so she made a bid for pat-ronage without saying a word to me about it. It would have spoiled the whole scheme, and I would have sponed the whole school by we'll When we get things running smoothly we'll have mighty high jinks in that flat. But isn't advertising a great thing?"—Chicago Mail.

PART of their way to fortune for many successful advertisers has been over this stretch of the Road to Success:

They had an article which appealed to householders. They advertised it persistently in the papers of THE RELIGIOUS PRESS ASSOCIATION, Philadelphia, and by that means spoke to parents in over 260,000 homes of the different Protestant denominations. These people are provident, many of them rich, and all have money to supply their needs. They are the people who make trade good all the year round. Their needs cover the whole year, for they have homes to keep up, children to clothe, feed, doctor and educate. They have tastes to gratify in ways of both simple and luxurious living.

The papers which can introduce you to these people are all Home Journals of the best character. They carry with them the reverence and authority gained by years of usefulness and good work.
